Mia's Bridge

LOGLINE

On the verge of becoming Chief of Police, Kevin Turner is rocked by personal loss. His daughter Mia dares to dream of unity in a city divided by crime, race, and distrust. As their paths collide with forces that thrive on division, their fight becomes a story of courage, healing, and the belief that one vision can spark lasting change.

SYNOPSIS

Mia's Bridge is a powerful, action-driven drama about hope, healing, and unity. After personal tragedy, Officer Kevin Turner and his daughter Mia fight to bridge deep divisions in a community torn by violence, hate, and systemic unrest. As powerful forces benefit from keeping people apart, Mia's bold vision sparks a movement—proving that even the deepest divides can be healed.

With a diverse cast and crew, strong social relevance, and broad emotional appeal, Mia's Bridge offers the potential for meaningful impact—and a compelling return on investment.

Kaylan Love

DP/DOP/Cinematographer

Born and raised from Charlotte, NC. His early love for film came as he always watched movies with his grandmother at a young age. Wondering how movies was made and how he could keep up with his favorite actors and films, Kaylan continued to watch films evolve and became more intrigued about the process.

As a top high school track & field athlete Kaylan attended North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University on scholarship. Kaylan would go on to study Journalism and Mass Production following working in the schools tv studio. Soon he realized his love for film wasn't going away as he began writing short scripts and producing for the schools broadcast. After graduating school, Kaylan has worked with many directors along the east coast as DP. His love for film is to reconnect us all to what really matters which is unity and the many lesson we all learn in life that can be shared with a message produced through film. Film is power; Kaylan believes as it drives most peoples attention and intentions with everyday decisions one takes, and for that he wants to be responsible for creating frames that inspire, encourage, and most of all bring change to our reality to help our future generations.

Frazer Lockhart

DP/DOP/Cinematographer

Frazer is an Atlanta-based Director of Photography with over a decade of DP experience. Frazer began his career in the mountains of Colorado, where he developed his skills as a documentary DP working on projects for National Geographic and Discovery. His transition to narrative filmmaking was driven by developing a passion for lighting. Since then,

Frazer has hashed the privilege of working in the camera department of some of the biggest and best shows and movies to come out in recent years, including HBO's Staircase, Black Panther 2: Wakanda Forever, the Resident, and Tales of the Walking Dead. Frazer has also served as the DP of several independent projects, most recently Hidden Orchard Mysteries: the Case of the AirBnB Robbery. Frazer takes a storytelling-first mentality to every project he works on and is able to draw from his varied creative background to break the mold with his frames.

*These estimates are speculative but the main consideration is that the majority of the audience has overwhelmingly decide they do not want divisive, hate-baiting films. They are starving for a film which brings solutions, rather than problems.

Recently, a top A+ Lister, Idris Elba in a Variety Interview said, "If we spent half the time not talking about the differences but the similarities between us, the entire planet would have a shift in the way we deal with each other."
